

Turning Japanese? Lessons from Japan's Lost Decades and Challenges for the World

October 4, 2019

Masazumi Wakatabe

Deputy Governor
Bank of Japan

Masazumi Wakatabe, Deputy Governor of the Bank of Japan, gave a lunchtime talk at Columbia Business School's Center on Japanese Economy and Business titled, "Turning Japanese? Lessons from Japan's Lost Decades and Challenges for the World" on October 4, 2019. He used Japan's Lost Decades as a case study to highlight some useful lessons and challenges for economists and policymakers throughout the world, many of whom are facing similar challenges. Professor Takatoshi Ito, a professor at the School of International and Public Affairs, Columbia University moderated the seminar.

