On April 5, 2021, CJEB collaborated with Columbia Business School's Dean's Office on a special live webinar featuring Yuzaburo Mogi in conversation with Professor David Weinstein. They discussed Mr. Mogi's professional experience leading Kikkoman, a company founded by his ancestors and the world's largest producer of soy sauce, and his efforts growing it into a globally recognized brand. The event was part of Columbia Business School's Leadership Speaker Series, which brings together current students with industry leaders at the top of their fields, who are widely regarded as luminaries among the business community. This live webinar with Mr. Mogi was made specially available to the public and included opening remarks from Costis Maglaras, Dean and David and Lyn Silfen Professor of Business of Columbia Business School, and a Q&A session led by Columbia Business School Student Hiroto Nakamura '21.
